Gary Dixon checks out the workmanship in the stained glass window at Meeting Point House, Telford.

Offenders make window

A Telford community project has been given a painted window for its chapel - made by inmates at a young offenders' institution.

Meeting Point House, in Telford Town Centre, provides facilities for community groups.

Gary Dixon, manager of Carols Cafe which is in the facility, decided that it would be a good idea to get a new window into the chapel.

Mr Dixon is also a part time teacher at Brinsford Young Offenders Institution, near Wolverhampton, and decided to get some of the youngsters to help him out.

The institution was given the glass and the inmates involved in arts courses got to work on their own design.

It has now gone up at Meeting Point House.

Mr Dixon said it was a good chance for the youngsters to put something back into the community. "They have done a good job. I am pleased that they have been able to help us out with their skills," he said.